

BRAMER AND KETCHELL WANT GONG TO RING

Shortly after the big fracas in Toledo is over tomorrow afternoon, and a new champion is perhaps crowned, two little fellows named Harry Bramer and Eddie Ketchell will be very much in the thoughts of one Johnny Kilbane, featherweight 125 lbs. under by virtue of a twenty-round decision over Abe Attell—and still greater by virtue of knowledge all about the old adage of a "puncher going to the well too often."

Kilbane has practically made up his mind to give the winner of tomorrow afternoon's bout a chance at his title for the experts back east are weighing up to the fact that Jeff is not proving the stimulant to the great ring game that is expected of a champion and besides it is a question if he is not a full grown lightweight masquerading as a featherweight.

For his Tonopah appearance, the title holder will have to weigh in at the same poundage as his opponent, Ketchell or Bramer.

The above summary affords all

OLD BATTLE MOUNTAIN SILVER MINE TO REOPEN

C. H. Johnson of Battle Mountain is preparing to reopen the Clipper mine near Battle Mountain. In the early days the Clipper produced a large quantity of high-grade silver and the present price of the metal has induced him to start work. Machinery is being hauled from Beowawe and lumber and other supplies are being sent to the mine near Battle Mountain.

NO MORE BREAD TICKETS

(Correspondence Associated Press) SALT LAKE, June 14.—The use of bread tickets have been discontinued in France, and food cards are now only issued for sugar. The minister of food states that the cost of printing and distributing the various cards during the war was nearly $4,000,000.

WEATHER CHART OF THE PACIFIC

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 3.—Dr. Ford A. Carpenter, meteorologist, in charge of the United States weather bureau here, is preparing a weather chart of the Pacific ocean to be used by the Pacific Aero Club in mapping a proposed aerial route from Venice, Calif., to Sydney, Australia.

Dr. Carpenter undertook the work at the suggestion of Thomas H. Ince, who has offered $50,000 to the first aviator to fly across the Pacific ocean.

Dr. Carpenter is author of The Aviator and the Weather Bureau, and is said to be the first scientific weather observer to make a systematic study of meteorological conditions in actual flight.

"I believe that weather conditions are better on the Pacific ocean for an airplane cruise than on the Atlantic," Dr. Carpenter said. "There is less fog and the difference in day and night temperatures is not so radical."

He will look after Mrs. Mills, my eight-year-old son and my property."

Though he mentions this property interest last, Mills is rated a millionaire. Most of his income is derived from oil bearing lands in Oklahoma, his home.

Mills served as a member of the field artillery.

RICHEST INDIAN IN THE SERVICE

(Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 3.—Joe Mills, the richest Indian in the service of America in the world war, has had enough of fighting and favors making peace. He saw 18 months' service including participation in the memorable engagement at Chateau Thierry, where Mills stopped a German machine gun bullet. He still carries his arm in a sling as the result of the wound.

Mills is in Los Angeles to "rest up" to get the memories of the European fighting out of his mind, as he said. Mills said from earliest childhood he had heard the old men of his tribe—he is of the Owages—tell of the glories of war and he thought soldiering would be a good adventure.

"So it may have been," said he, "when the old men of my tribe were young, but that was before the day of the machine gun and poisoned gas. The slaughter in France is horrible. I did my duty and I will do it again if Uncle Sam needs me but until he does I am going to stay in the good old United States."
